Reliability and availability of data centers cannot be guaranteed without an Uptime tier design certificate in order to meet the standards required by larger organizations with greater data and connectivity requirements such as: Google, Facebook ..etc. This is especially important for cross-country or cross-continent interconnectivity.

Where in-house servers have limited capacities, data centers work as hubs to provide high-tech servers that can serve large communities and have a high capability for connectivity, data sharing and confidential data protection. Often, this is essential for ITC, healthcare, educational, governmental and large commercial projects. Tier 3 is widely used due to its great performance and value, but CCG can design data centers up to Tier 4, which provides the highest
